CAMPAIGNING

. . . for John Poerner for Congress can provide its lighter moments as well as some frustrating ones.

In San Angelo the other week I was standing on a downtown intersection passing out brochures when I saw this elderly couple approaching. They must have been near 70 and she had a tight grip on his arm. I asked them could I give them a brochure on Mr. Poerner and the little old man accepted it. Immediately, the little woman snatched it from his hand and handed it back.

The man took it back from me. The woman grabbed it and handed it back saying: "We don't want to start that."

He took the brochure again and said to her: "Mama, I want it." And they went off down the sidewalk, she still holding tightly to his arm and he taking a closer look at the brochure.

I certainly hope they decide to "start" whatever she spoke about in time to vote for John on May 4.

Some people take brochures reluctantly; others appreciate getting them so they can study the candidates; some say right off, "I am going to vote for him"; while others will tell you they are supporting other candidates.

In Del Rio last week we went into a store and gave some literature to a woman in charge. She said: "I sure am glad you came by. When it comes time to vote, and you have to vote, a person never knows who to vote for unless they know the candidates. And certainly the candidates can't get around and meet everyone. So now you have come by I'll know who to vote for in the coming election."

Also in Del Rio I met Max Stool, a store owner, and when he found out we were from Hondo, he said: "I have some strong memories of Hondo. Back in 1938 I was captain of the Del Rio high school football team and we played Hondo in Hondo. They had a terrific team and were supposed to wallop us. In the first half they jumped ahead 13-0. But in the second half we came back and scored 14 points to win. Then the next year we battled Hondo to a 0-0 tie.

And in Del Rio Catto Garcia said: "Tell Jack Hartung hello. I met him when he used to bring eggs to Del Rio years ago." So I passed the message on to Jack who said, "Catto is a fine man."

It's just amazing how over this wide district you can run into people who either used to live in Hondo or have friends or relatives in the local area.

In Leakey, Campwood and Rocksprings we ran into many people and they were all related to Elmo Pope.

Rocksprings also saw us meet Doreen Shanklin who immediately asked: "You know my lifelong friend Ward Pope, of course?" And a Mrs. Jenkins said: "I am a cousin to Robert Zuberbueler and was raised in Dunlay."

We also met a Mrs. John Eckhart who claims kin to Dooley. She was married to his brother.

Then in Junction we went in to meet the mayor and guess who she is? None other than Mrs. Fredricka Wyatt, sister to Fane

Burt. Now, don't you agree the world is small?

COKE STEVENSON

...was a household name in Texas politics many years before I ever thought about attempting to understand the profession.

He was in the House of Representatives, served as lieutenant governor and was elected to a full term as governor in 1942 and 1944.

Gov. Stevenson is proud that his administration eliminated the deficit in the state's general fund without the issuance of state bonds that had been authorized by a constitutional amendment.

That same amendment placed the State of Texas on a "pay-asyou-go" basis which will be continued in the new constitution if it is approved by the public.

So it was quite natural Tuesday that Gov. Stevenson ask John Poerner "how will the pay-as-you-go stand in the new Poerner met with Gov. Stevenson for an hour-and-a-half and I was privileged to sit in on the meeting. Well, let me say it was a great honor.

At 86 Gov. Stevenson has a mind sharp as the wind which blows through the rugged hills around Junction where he lives. He recalls names, events and places as if they were yesterday.

But don't think he is living in the past. The man is in tune with what is happening today and proved it Tuesday by whipping Dedication ceremonies for the for the public to view the dam, Court and the Soil Conservation Parker Creek Flood Prevention which is the result of a joint effort Service. After the Saturday Service. After the Saturday ceremonies the site will be closed to the public.

The dedication ceremony will be at the site of the dam, which can be reached by going north of D'Hanis on FM 1796 about nine miles, turning off into Gilliam's property and continuing another mile to the dam site. (See map).

Work began in June of 1966 planning what was to be a series of dams designed to protect the Seco watershed area from recurrent flooding and to recharge the underground water reservoir.

Since that time studies have been made and locations mapped for the structures, but the one spanning the Parker Creek is the only structure scheduled presently to be completed.

Objections by landowners to others in the series of dams caused the rest of the project to be cancelled for the present.

Bids were opened March 30, 1973 for construction of the Parker Creek dam. Lowest bid of the five firms competing for the job was William A. Pfeuffer Company, at $319,-220.50. That firm was given the contract. Resident engineers for the project were Lodell and Bain. A year later, the dam is completed. Adding in another approximately $40,000 for some unforeseen core samples, total cost of the project will approach

UNDERGROUND LAKE

The Parker Creek structure is one of the largest dams in the County, but its "lake" is designed to shrink from a maximum of 311 acres to a sediment pool of only 14 acres in only 61/2 days.

In contrast to most dams, this one is designed to put floodwaters in storage underground instead of on the surface. It is constructed rime recharge area for the atop the giant Edwards Underground reservoir.

After a heavy rain (the dam can accommodate rainwater from oncein-a-century downpours), water is trapped by the 1,500 foot-long rockcovered earthen structure. It is then allowed to pass through a principal spillway built of concrete and steel pipe 42 inches in Flowing out of the spillway at a safe, nondestructive rate the water can seep gradually into the porous limestone outcropping that marks the Edwards recharge area.

Completion of the dam marks a significant reduction in the threat of flooding to D'Hanis, which lies some ten miles downstream.

COOPERATION The cooperative nature of the construction of Parker Creek dam can be seen by noting that no fewer than four major organizations, plus five landowners, worked together for its completion.

Sponsors of the project were Medina Valley Soil and Water Conservation District, Medina County Commissioners Court, and the Edwards Underground Water

Design and engineering information were made available by the Soil Conservation Service.

Also, easements were obtained from Odie Gilliam, Franklin Muennink, B. N. Adams, Ralph Gilliam and the Armin Rothe estate. Waters from the temporary lake will reach property owned by each of these five when the reservoir is at maximum capacity.

Today, Maj. Hickman is with the flight screening program at Hondo Airbase, but then he was a member of the 20th Special Operations Squadron, known as the "Green Hornets" and the pilot of UHIN (Huey) gunship. The Green Hornets flew quite a few secret missions into enemy-held territory. Frequently, the mission involved placing a reconnaisance team on the ground, waiting a few days and then flying back in to pick them up. The terrain was mountainous and covered with jungle punctuated by occasional "clearings". It is not an ideal place to land a helicopter.

On the third of February 1972, Maj. Hickman took off as the gunship led with four other helicopters trailing behind him. Three were gunships and one was a rescue helicopter, known as a "slick." They had a reconnaisance team on board the choppers.

After circling the proposed landing area at treetop level, Hickman let his bird down and disgorged part of the team. The other helicopters followed his lead and then the entire flight lifted off into the sky and orbited the area.

Some 10 minutes later the ground teams reported they were under heavy fire. Hickman's helicopters began strafing with their miniguns and firing rockets into the trees. Ground fire became progressively heavier as they made 8-shaped passes at treetop level firing everything that would shoot.

Major Hickman tells the story best, "During one turn I heard some sounds in the back of the helicopter. We were taking hits. We lost oil pressure and the warning lights were glowing red on the instrument panel.'

We, the State Department of Public Welfare, hope you will enjoy what you are doing, and that the children in your home will be happy and busy, and a pleasure to you. This article is written to help you make some of the important decisions that are part of caring for other people's children. By law, it is the responsibility of Welfare to license Day Care Homes. If you wish to have your home licensed for Day Care, you will have help from the State Department of Public Welfare staff. The purpose of licensing child day care homes is to assure good care for children away from their own home during part of the 24-hour day. During the licensing process, some of the things the day care worker will discuss with care in your home;

2) Whether or not there are any safety hazards in the home or in the yard

Family day care mo- do to correct any existing hazards so that you may be licensed;

> 3) How you propose to plan for a developmental program of daily activities appropriate for the ages of children in care;

4) What equipment you have and what additional equipment seems necessary for future planning;

5) The importance of good nutrition; 6) How you plan to meet emergencies such as fire, accident or sudden illness and the use of medications; 7) Agreements you will

to make with parents.

Providing day care is a public service. When you are licensed to provide this service, you have made certain agreements with the State Department of Public Welfare such as: following the rules and regulations, providing good and safe child care. keeping the Department informed about significant the Department of Public changes in your situation, and discussing problems with them. You also enter into an agreement with parents to provide care for their child for so many hours per day and so many days per week. The Department and parents have also made agreements with you to perform certain functions. If you are currently caring for children other than your own, or desire to provide this service to your community, please call the State Welfare 1) The number and ages Licensing Unit (Collect) at of the children to receive 533-3161, Ext. 196 or 334, or write to this office at: Stae Department of Public Welfare, Licensing Unit 29, P.O. by Edna McDade

To cover an itinerary that included San Antonio, Hondo, a side trip to Portugal and Spain, Laredo, and then to return home to Corpus Christi all in one piece, within ten days, seems worthy of note and it is here so noted. The trip abroad was courtesy of the Hondo Garden Club and its peripatetic good will ambassador, MARGARET [Mrs. Hilmer] HAEGE-LIN who had returned for a second look at a land that calls for seconds.

Illustrating her talk with the colored slides which she and Hilmer brought back as proof, the speaker held this free-loader passenger spellbound. It was the next best to having been on the 3-weeks tour myself.

Moorish castles, an 8th century Mosque, royal palaces, landscaped parks, winding waterways, fabulous fountains, suspension bridges, 13th century cathedrals, modern skyscrapers, the site where Columbus had planned with Isabella how he planned to discover America and so on and on. Windmills in the land of Don Quixote caught my special interest.

Giants, indeed! I am writing this during a sleepless night. What better way to invest the time than to refer, again, to my Don Quijote [the x had been dropped by then] and reread favorite selections, including "Capitulo VIII, Del buen suceso que el valeroso Don Quijote tuvo en espantable y jamas imaginada aventura de los molinos de viento...", as required in Spanish II, Spring Term, Southwestern U., 1914. [Repeat, 1914, and still among my favorite books.]

From "Spain", LOUISE [Mrs. W. L.] TAYLOR, took me for a quickie visit to Brown's Nursing Center where I exchanged greetings with NOREEN KENT whose blue eyes still twinkle; the WILLIE PICHOTS; Mrs. JOHN NEUMAN, Miss JOHANNA LEINWEBER, both of whom told me they were members of a newly-formed art class; and Mrs. ELLIE GEUEA [mother of Alice [Dan's Drug]

"Ninety years old, I am," Mrs. Geuea told me, and with the joy of living still brightening her smile and happy outlook on life.

Two friends I missed greeting in their homes, for lack of time, were Mrs. MYRTLE WILLIAMS and Mrs. OPAL McWILLIAMS, but I had news of both of them and this is by way of a belated greeting and wishes for a better day "tomorrow".

My first visit to my old Avenue L neighborhood, since I left there in June '72, was a delightful one. Lunch, just like "old times" with JEWEL and CHARLIE GASTON. M-m-m, good, just as I remembered.

Bluebonnets, which seem to favor that special block, were putting on a show and the Gaston's garden still dares ary-a-weed to show its head

At Leinweber's many howdy's were exchanged. EVAH PING, looking more like Evah and with the same cheery philosophy, was taking care of MAVIS STOCKBRIDGE, R.N., who was shopping.

Said Evah, although it might not be necessarily so, "I can never remember this customer's name. While I was in MM Hospital, I used to call her CATTLE-GATE, means same thing and easier to remember!"

New acquaintances were BETTY [Mrs. Wm.] MOMA and little daughter, TARA. Born in Ethiopia, she and her parents, and Tara's puppies, Fritz and Heidi, now roam the wide open spaces on their Hidden Valley Cattle Ranch, in easy shopping access of Hondo. The Moma's are both Texas Hill Country natives and wouldn't trade places with anybody.

My, how Hondo is growing, headed toward real city-size while keeping small-town charm, I hope. The new GALLO BUILDING is something else!

My host for a tour was ALBERT ROWLETT whose new office sparkled with newness. Furniture by A. ROWLETT, a saw and a couple of hammers, he told me. If he ever gives up LM insurance, he'll have it made in the office furniture line... "if I can find somebody else to feed the family" he added. Albert is a young man with ambition, determination and self-set goals and right on target.

A drive to Kerrville gave me a good view of the Kollman Oaks development. Beautiful.

MILDRED [Mrs. Lloyd] WHARTON, whose husband has retired from Texas Highway duties after 40 years, was busy with renovation plans for their big home [former Ben Balzen residence] on 21st Street. In the planning also were celebrations of Lloyd's birthday and their 34th wedding anniversary.

It was good to be greeted by JERRY NEUMAN, who was "good to know" in the early days of his career behind the meat counter at Super-Sav, where he held forth for his first ten years. Jerry has the smile that won't come off and is always ready with "funnies" to make the gloomiest day sparkle. I remember the customer bell above the Super Sav meat counter. Jerry would jingle it and sing out, "Avon calling!".

After six years as far east as Castroville, Jerry is back home where he belongs and proud to be among-those-present at H.E.B.

I have more notes somewhere, squiggled on box tops, cash register tickets, a worn note book etc. ... Now, if I can find and decipher them, there'll be more about the homefolks from time to time.

The trip abroad was courtesy of the Hondo Garden Club and its peripatetic good will ambassador, MARGARET [Mrs. Hilmer] HAEGE-LIN who had returned for a second look at a land that calls for seconds.

Illustrating her talk with the colored slides which she and Hilmer brought back as proof, the speaker held this free-loader passenger spellbound. It was the next best to having been on the 3-weeks tour

Moorish castles, an 8th century Mosque, royal palaces, landscaped parks, winding waterways, fabulous fountains, suspension bridges, 13th century cathedrals, modern skyscrapers, the site where Columbus had planned with Isabella how he planned to discover America and so on and on. Windmills in the land of Don Quixote caught my special interest. Giants, indeed!

I am writing this during a sleepless night. What better way to invest the time than to refer, again, to my Don Quijote [the x had been dropped by then] and reread favorite selections, including "Capitulo VIII, Del buen suceso que el valeroso Don Quijote tuvo en espantable y jamas imaginada aventura de los molinos de viento...", as required in Spanish II, Spring Term, Southwestern U., 1914. [Repeat, 1914, and still among my favorite books.]

From "Spain", LOUISE [Mrs. W. L.] TAYLOR, took me for a quickie visit to Brown's Nursing Center where I exchanged greetings with NOREEN KENT whose blue eyes still twinkle; the WILLIE PICHOTS; Mrs. JOHN NEUMAN, Miss JOHANNA LEINWEBER, both of whom told me they were members of a newly-formed art class; and Mrs. ELLIE GEUEA [mother of Alice [Dan's Drug]

"Ninety years old, I am," Mrs. Geuea told me, and with the joy of living still brightening her smile and happy outlook on life.

Two friends I missed greeting in their homes, for lack of time, were Mrs. MYRTLE WILLIAMS and Mrs. OPAL McWILLIAMS, but I had news of both of them and this is by way of a belated greeting and wishes for a better day "tomorrow".

My first visit to my old Avenue L neighborhood, since I left there in June '72, was a delightful one. Lunch, just like "old times" with JEWEL and CHARLIE GASTON. M-m-m, good, just as I remembered.

Bluebonnets, which seem to favor that special block, were putting on a show and the Gaston's garden still dares ary-a-weed to show its head.

At Leinweber's many howdy's were exchanged. EVAH PING, looking more like Evah and with the same cheery philosophy, was taking care of MAVIS STOCKBRIDGE, R.N., who was shopping.

Said Evah, although it might not be necessarily so, "I can never remember this customer's name. While I was in MM Hospital, I used to call her CATTLE-GATE, means same thing and easier to remember!"

New acquaintances were BETTY [Mrs. Wm.] MOMA and little daughter, TARA. Born in Ethiopia, she and her parents, and Tara's puppies, Fritz and Heidi, now roam the wide open spaces on their Hidden Valley Cattle Ranch, in easy shopping access of Hondo. The Moma's are both Texas Hill Country natives and wouldn't trade places with anybody.

My, how Hondo is growing, headed toward real city-size while keeping small-town charm, I hope. The new GALLO BUILDING is something else!

My host for a tour was ALBERT ROWLETT whose new office sparkled with newness. Furniture by A. ROWLETT, a saw and a couple of hammers, he told me. If he ever gives up LM insurance, he'll have it made in the office furniture line... "if I can find somebody else to feed the family" he added. Albert is a young man with ambition, determination and self-set goals and right on target.

A drive to Kerrville gave me a good view of the Kollman Oaks development. Beautiful.

MILDRED [Mrs. Lloyd] WHARTON, whose husband has retired from Texas Highway duties after 40 years, was busy with renovation plans for their big home [former Ben Balzen residence] on 21st Street. In the planning also were celebrations of Lloyd's birthday and their 34th wedding anniversary.

It was good to be greeted by JERRY NEUMAN, who was "good to know" in the early days of his career behind the meat counter at Super-Sav, where he held forth for his first ten years.

Jerry has the smile that won't come off and is always ready with "funnies" to make the gloomiest day sparkle. I remember the customer bell above the Super Sav meat counter. Jerry would jingle it and sing out, "Avon calling!".

After six years as far east as Castroville, Jerry is back home where he belongs and proud to be among-those-present at H.E.B.

I have more notes somewhere, squiggled on box tops, cash register tickets, a worn note book etc. ... Now, if I can find and decipher them, there'll be more about the homefolks from time to time.

Tornado checklist

The killer tornadoes which recently struck with such devastation in other states renewed warnings for Texans to be prepared should such a catastrophe strike this state. J. O. (Jim) Smith Jr., chairman of the Texas Insurance Advisory Association executive committee, said, "The tragic loss of human life in other states emphasizes the need for precautions to be taken Texas home owners. This obviously is the time when Texas communities face the threat of tornadoes and windstorms. It's extremely vital to know what to do before and after a storm, though sadly there is no way to be totally safe from nature's fury. Texas was hit by over 800 tornadoes from 1968-73, causing 72 deaths and over one million injuries.

TO GRACE YOUNG

Mrs. Grace Young, a long time resident of Devine, Texas, died March 9, 1974, in the Pleasanton Hospital, Pleasanton, Texas, after a long illness. Grace Harris was born in Lockhart, Texas, May 9, 1890, but later moved with her family to Moore, Texas.

In 1908, Grace Harris married Ben Young at Moore, Texas. Mr. Young passed away June 13, 1965 in Devine, Texas. Mrs. Young was a member of the First Baptist Church of Devine, and a charter member of the Moore Baptist Church,

Moore, Texas. At a very early age, Grace set type for the Moore Model News of Moore, Texas. The paper was owned by Ben Young's father, and it was while working on the paper that Grace met the young man that was later to become her husband. She taught music for almost 50 years. Peaches Sollock, her only child, was one of her many students. Grace, even as a young girl played for church services and revivals. Music was important to her, and during her long illness she would spend many hours at her piano playing her favorite hymns. Grace Young loved all things that were beautiful, and her hobbies were composing poetry and making pretty gifts for those she loved. At one time, before she married, Grace, her mother and her sisters, were in the millinery business - Grace doing most of the designing and styling.

She was a very capable person, believing that you never get too old to learn, she spent much time in reading and studying.

She loved and appreciated people, and had a smile for all who came her way. One of her most endearing qualities was her sense of humor, and with one very important characteristic-the ability to laugh at herself. Grace Young is survived by her only child, Peaches Sollock, and many nieces and nephews. Her sister, Velma Ellison, passed away December 7, 1973, at Moore, Texas.

Grace Young will be greatly missed by all who knew her, but many lives are better because she lived.
